

TrialRunners

Clinical Research Assistant I (CRA)

Are you highly organized, efficient, and curious? Do you want to apply your innate gifts and rich life experiences to a more meaningful, rewarding role with opportunity for professional growth and development? Do you want to work in an exciting, fast paced industry?

Support the advancement of science and medicine in this research support role, a perfect fit for those working or degreed in a health- or science-related field looking to take on a new and exciting challenge with full, on-the-job training provided. Support the clinical trial process for new ophthalmic drugs and devices through the application of your organization, communication, and analytical skills. Primary responsibilities include tracking and reporting progress, communication between key parties, collaboration between departments, and completion of project-specific tasks.

Trial Runners is a community-minded, socially responsible, employee-centered company growing at a record pace, and we want you to join our energetic team. Contact us today to take your career to the next level all while enjoying an extraordinary work environment and some super cool perks!